BEATS KONA'S FLYING FISH

Simeon Johnson, a farmer of Tyson, Vt., made a discovery recently which so surprised him that he has spread the marvellous tale from one end of the country to the other.

For several months Sim has known that some one or something has been stealing milk from his pet Jersey cow. His good wife told him that the Jersey had simply dried up and that he was afflicted with a spell of imagination. Sim, however, declared that he knew what he knew, and sat up nights to discover the thief. But he saw no invaders, and the more sleep he lost the madder he got.

The Jersey was one of a herd of twenty, and as her milk was richer than that of the others the supply was saved for family use. She was quartered in a stall at the end of the cow stable and until three months ago gave four quarts morning and night. Then she suddenly cut down her morning quota to little or nothing. Sim, would have agreed with his wife if Bess hadn't furnished the usual amount at night and seemed ravenously hungry.

It made no difference whether Sim watched or not; the milk was always gone in the morning, although it was several times established that at midnight the supply was normal. It was this fact more than anything else that bothered Sim, and gave him creepy and uncanny sensations when he kept his vigils by the dim, uncertain light of an old kerosene lantern. He couldn't figure out why Bess should not give milk in the morning when there was plenty at midnight, or why she should be well supplied at night and not at the early milking.

"I don't believe there is anything milkin' that cow," said Mrs. Johnson one day recently, "but if there is it crawls, and you won't catch it unless you clean out the bedding so you can see the stall floor."

Sim allowed there might be something in this, and so he swept out the stall and made Bess lie on the planks instead of on a fine bed of clean straw. About 9 o'clock he got his lantern and once more took up his post of vigil. He had begun to doze when he heard Bess shift her position, and he held up the light. He was just in time to see a long, glistening, sinuous form slip under the side of the reclining cow and glide down a rat-hole in the corner of the stall. At the same time he heard a familiar sound that caused his hair to stand on end.

"Rattlesnakes," he gurgled, and grabbed a pitchfork.

Bess jumped to her feet and moaned contentedly as the farmer advanced cautiously and began a careful investigation. There was but one rat-hole. This led to a pile of rocks under the barn, and Sim retired to the house. In the morning, with the help of the hired man, the rocks were removed, and five rattlers, each three times its natural size, were killed. According to the number of rattles, all but one was young, but exceedingly large and fat.—New York Herald.

MAUI WANTS ANOTHER GAME

PLAYERS DISAPPOINTED IN THEIR HONOLULU CONTEST AND INVITE MAILES TO MAUI

WAILUKU, October 23.—The local contingent of baseball players returned from Honolulu by the Mauna Loa with a hard luck story regarding their encounter with the Maile nine of Honolulu, who put it all over the Maui aggregation to the tune of 11 to 1. However, the Maui boys are anxious to redeem themselves, and by this mail are offering to have the Mailes come to Maui and play one or two games on election day, or any other day which may be found convenient. While in Honolulu, the Maui boys were approached several times by Lieutenant Harber, who seemed anxious to give the Marines an outing on one of the other islands, and as this seemed to be a chance, they mentioned the subject to the Maui nine who went to Honolulu. The consequence is that the matter was taken up immediately, with the result that an invitation has been extended to the Maile team. One game will be played on the afternoon of election day, November 8th, and if a second game is to be played, the first will be played on the Sunday preceding. The Maui nine will be composed of the best material on this island, and as they will play on their own grounds, it is a certainty that the game will not be as bad as that played in Honolulu, unless Hampton decides to bate another liner on to Kruger's foot, and make it twice the size a repetition of his play in Honolulu.

CHANGE MAUI PRECINCT.

WAILUKU, October 23.—A petition signed by about fifty voters of the District of Wailuku, was sent to Governor Carter last week, through W. J. Coelho candidate for Representative from Maui, asking that they be allowed to cast their ballots in the Wailuku precinct, instead of Waihee. These voters reside just on the mauka side of the Iao stream, which stream forms the boundary of the Wailuku precinct. This necessitates their travelling all the way to Waihee to cast their votes on election day. Coelho made a special trip to Honolulu in the interests of these citizens, and received the assurance of the Governor that the desired change would be made for the next election, as it was impossible to do so this time.

Coelho is now sure of all the votes of these men, which would otherwise have gone over to the Home Rule forces, as the most of them are dyed-in-the-wool Home Rulers.

SOME POOR LEGISLATORS

MAUI HOME RULERS AN IGNORANT LOT BUT SOME OF THEM MAY WIN.

WAILUKU, October 23.—There have been no political meetings of any consequence during the past week, excepting small gatherings in the outlying districts. It is the general impression that a divided set of men will be sent to the legislature from Maui. It would be a pity for Maui if the whole Home Rule force was sent down, as certainly the candidates for the House on their ticket are as ignorant a set of men as could be found on Maui, with the probable exception of John Richardson. For the Senate J. L. Cooke may make a good senator, but Billy White would be a failure. The Republicans on the contrary have good men, and although they may prove weak in one or two men, yet all the candidates are the choice of their respective precincts. Hayselden and Kalama would make fitting Senators, and if elected, would be a credit to the island of Maui. It is predicted by some that Notley will obtain more votes on Maui than either Kuhio or Lauken. All those who were naturalized lately, will vote straight Republican, and it may be that this will help Kuhio very materially.

WAS DESPONDENT SO COMMITTED SUICIDE

LACK OF WORK LED TO ENGLISHMAN TAKING HIS LIFE SATURDAY BY DROWNING.

L. C. Groves committed suicide some time Saturday night by drowning himself in the harbor. The body was found floating near the cattle pen on yesterday morning about 10 o'clock. Despondency over inability to secure work is thought to have been the cause for the man desiring to take his life. Groves had been employed at the Hawaiian Fertilizer Works up to about five weeks ago but was discharged on account of continued drinking. He was always regarded as an efficient man when sober but appears to have been drinking quite heavily recently. He had lived at the Queen Hotel on Nuuanu street and had gotten in arrears. The proprietor spoke to Groves on Friday and asked for some money, but Groves replied that he would secure work soon and would be able to pay. On Saturday night Dickey Davis saw Groves and treated him to a drink. Davis appears to have been the person to see Groves last.

The coroner's inquest was held yesterday and returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased had come to his death by suicide by drowning, while mentally deranged. The deceased had lived in these islands five years. He had formerly lived in Shanghai and is reported to have a son still living some where in China. The deceased was an Englishman by birth.
